The present invention relates to a controlling method of a dishwasher which includes executing various cycles according to a selected course, beginning a rinse cycle during the various cycles, controlling the operation of a heater and a wash pump according to whether or not the rinse cycle is specified as a hot rinse cycle, ending the operation of the wash pump upon completion of the rinse cycle, and performing subsequent cycles.

D1 discloses a method for determining the quantity of dishes in a dishwashing and drying apparatus by sensing the electric power, the initial water temperature and the temperature variation, and applying a fuzzy membership function to the sensed value. The method comprises the steps of: checking the state of the input power voltage and the water level; sensing the initial water temperature (A); checking the variation of the water temperature; calculating the quantity of dishes based on the sensed value by using the fuzzy inference; and setting a rinsing time, a washing time and a drying time.

D2 discloses a water temperature control method comprising the steps of: checking a temperature of water fed to determine whether the temperature reaches a target water temperature and performing twice bypass operations for water discharging, water re-feeding or control completion according to the determined result; expecting a linear type of a water temperature to time to determine whether or not the temperature of water re-fed reaches the target water temperature; if the temperature is over the target water temperature, executing third and fourth bypass operations to determine whether or not the temperature of water re-fed is equal to the target water temperature; and if it is equal, completing a water temperature control.

Box V.

Novelty

Neither D1 nor D2 discloses a dishwasher including executing various cycles according to a selected course as set forth in the present claims 1-20. Therefore, the subject matter of claims 1-20 is considered to be novel under PCT Article 33(2).

Inventive Step

The dishwasher of claims 1-4 and the controlling method of the dishwasher of claims 5-20, which includes executing various cycles according to a selected course, controlling the operation of a heater and a wash pump according to whether or not the rinse cycle is specified as a hot rinse cycle, ending the operation of the wash pump upon completion of the rinse cycle, and performing subsequent cycles, could have been arrived at by a combination of D2 and D1 which discloses a method for determining the quantity of dishes in a dishwashing and drying apparatus by sensing the electric power, the initial water temperature, the temperature variation and the target water temperature. Accordingly, the subject matter of claims 1-20 does not involve an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3).

Industrial Applicability

Claims 1-20 are considered to be industrially applicable under PCT Article 33(4).
